Jeff Stewart (AGSM) has been our conductor since 2009 and during this time has made a very positive impact on the choir. An accomplished opera singer, Jeff is a professor of the Vocal Faculty at the Royal College of Music.

He is passionate about choral singing and in a short time has improved the sound of the choir and also challenged us with some rewarding and demanding music. This has resulted in some very impressive and exciting performances, including the World Amateur Premier of Sir John Tavener's Lament for Jerusalem, performed to a packed audience in St Anselm's Church in Hayes.

NO FORMAL AUDITION IS REQUIRED

We welcome experienced singers, but we also seek to encourage singers who are out of practice or less experienced; our aim is to improve the singing technique of all our members. It is a help if you can read music, but we are equally happy if you can learn quickly by ear. Jeff will talk to each newcomer, and in accepting new members, he will take account of the need to balance different voice parts.
